

British Values game

For groups of 3+

Activity

Using the four British Values as headings, ask the group to place the pictures under the heading they think it is and justify why they have put it there (there are four headings that don't really fit the values for students to identify)

The discussion itself is promoting a value. As groups they explore what the values are and are not, what each one mean.

To extend we also looked at how to embed each value within not only the classroom but within all sections of the Institute.

The Values Discussions

These have been used as a starter activity or a moral dilemma within the higher level classes.

There are no right or wrong answers but this does encourage students to think and to voice their opinions on these subjects; again all can be referred back to the Values
